Perspectives on Political Science

Each issue of Perspectives on Political Science contains close to 80 reviews of new books in the ever-changing fields of government politics, international affairs, and political thought. These books are reviewed by outstanding specialists one to twelve months after publication. Also included are major articles covering innovations or rethinking traditions in teaching techniques. Occasional symposia issues address the state of the art in political science and public policy.

GUIDELINES TO COMMONWEALTH STYLE

Please follow these guidelines. The Editor reserves the right to request revisions in all drafts submitted.

Text, NOTES and REFERENCES should be double spaced and on a letter-quality printer.

For each revision and the final draft, send 2 copies. One copy of your paper on disk (in ASCII form) is to be submitted when requested by the Editor. COMMONWEALTH generally follows the style used in the American Political Science Review, but note the following:

Any tables and figures: The final version of the paper should include these, cleanly typed and suitable for photographing as artwork. They must be camera-ready: reducing to COMMONWEALTH page size (6 1/4" x 4 1/2") is the responsibility of the author.

A complete list of reference sources should be placed at the end of the paper as REFERENCES. Be sure every cited work (and none that are not cited) is included, and that all entries are complete and accurate. Use first names rather than initials where possible. If you revise your paper and add or delete citations, crosscheck again. Use old APSR style for article titles: omit quotation marks.

Citations, whenever possible, should include one or more relevant page or chapter numbers. Groups of page numbers should be written as 411-412, not 411-2 or 411-12. Cites following a direct quote should be placed outside the quote marks.

For institutional or anonymous authorship, supply minimum identification (name of sponsoring body or publication title) keyed to the REFERENCE. For example:

...which was known (National Bar Association 1985, 17-21). [REF:National Bar Association. 1985. Position Paper 412.] (end of a quotation:) ...in the pot." (New York Times 1971, 387)

[REF:New York Times. 1971. The Pentagon Papers. New York: Bantam.]

For all other matters of style, consult, first, American Political Science Association Committee on Publications, Style Manual for Political Science, and the dictionaries listed therein; then A Manual of Style, 13th ed., University of Chicago Press. Please contact the Editor of COMMONWEALTH with any questions.

Guidelines for Submission to
*COMMONWEALTH: A Journal of Political Science

COMMONWEALTH is a general journal which annually publishes original research from among the many subfields and perspectives in the discipline as well as those of an interdisciplinary nature. Open to a variety of approaches and methodologies, it seeks studies which are based on theoretical perspectives (empirical and/or normative) as well as those which advance knowledge by using historical approaches. We particularly encourage scholars studying Pennsylvania Politics and government to submit articles for consideration by our referees.

Some specific guidelines for manuscripts are as follows: The preferred length is 15 to 30 typewritten pages, including notes, references, tables, and any other appended material. All material should be double spaced. Tables and figures should be placed on separate, consecutively-numbered pages following the text, with an indication in the text of their approximate placement; these precede any content notes, which are then followed by the list of references. Four copies should be submitted, and to facilitate blind refereeing, the author's name and affiliation should be on a separate cover page. The citation style used is the American Political Science Association's Style Manual for Political Science, with a few exceptions which are noted on our Style Sheet published on the preceding page.

Persons wishing to submit manuscripts for consideration should send them to:

Thomas Baldino, Editor
Department of Political Science
School of Business, Society and Public Policy
Wilkes University
Wilkes-Barre, PA 18766

Guidelines for Review Essays

Review essays should not be undertaken for COMMONWEALTH until a proposal has been accepted by the Editor. Thus, the first step is to contact the Editor with a proposal to review a number of major texts in any definable subfield or special area of political science that are currently in print. The proposal should include a complete, fully cited list of all books proposed for the review. The Editor may consult specialists in the subfield before making a determination on any proposal. If the determination is to commission a review, together with a letter requesting that the reviewer go ahead, the Editor will send each reviewer a set of directions for completing the review.
