ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Aryeh Botwinick is an Associate Professor of Political Science at Temple University, specializing in political theory. His books include Wittgenstein and Historical Understanding (1981), Wittgenstein, Skepticism and Political Participation (1985) and Democracy and Scarcity (1986).

Martin J. Collo is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at Widener University. He has written previously on dependent capitalism.

Jacqueline DeLaat is an Associate Professor of Politics and Public Policy at Bethany College in West Virginia. In addition to teaching, she has held numerous administrative and research positions in the public sector and in quasipublic organizations, primarily in the Washington area. Her major interests are public-private sector relations, public finance, and American politics.

David Kowalewski teaches American and International Politics at the University of Texas at San Antonio. He is the author of Transnational Corporations and Caribbean Inequalities (Praeger, 1982) and other works in Journal of Politics, Social Science Quarterly, and elsewhere.

Robin Leonard studies at the Rockefeller Graduate School of Public Affairs at the State University of New York at Albany. Her works on American political economy have appeared in Politics and Policy and Review of Religious Research.

Joan Hulse Thompson is Co-Chair of the Political Science Department at Beaver College. She has published previously in Political Science Quarterly and Women and Politics. In 1985-86, she was an APSA Congressional Fellow.
